The Keystone Live Stock company has filed incorporation papers at Santa Fe, the directors and incorporators being C. E. Platt and H. H. Mathes of Philadelphia, Thomas W. Hanna of Lamy and R. H. Hanna of Santa Fe, which is the headquarters. The capital stock is $50,000.

The construction gang of the Colorado Telephone Company reached Santa Fe on the 13th inst. with the long-distance line from Denver, and from there will build to Albuquerque, and El Paso. Long-distance telephones were installed in most of the Santa Fe business houses and the service will begin December 1st.

Troop B, First squadron cavalry, C. N. G., won the Willcox trophy at the state competition near Denver, on the 28th ult. It will remain in their possession for one year, when it will again be contested for. The company's total was 654, a percentage of 72.69 as against the next competitor, which was Company B of the First Infantry.

Richard Rogers and Lloyd Phelps, both employees of the American Lumber company in the Zuni mountains, were brought into Albuquerque on the morning of the 16th inst., fatally injured. The men were working on a bridge on the Zuni Mountain railroad when a rotten beam broke, both men falling to the rocks thirty feet below.

Incorporation papers have been filed at Santa Fe by the Deming City Water Company, capital stock $100,000. The incorporators and directors are: Paul R. Smith, W. C. Wallis, James R. Waddill, J. J. Bennett and J. B. Hodgins of Deming. The company will pump the underflow of the Mimbres river for domestic and irrigation purposes.

Superintendent J. K. Allen of the government Indian school says that the loss by fire at the school was over-estimated. He figures the loss at about $12,000. The building destroyed was a two-story frame, valued at about $2,500, and the bucket brigade of Indian scholars and officials kept the flames from the main buildings of the school.

Incorporation papers have been filed at Santa Fe by the Ora Quay Gold Mining Company, the incorporators and directors being Benjamin F. Spencer, William R. Strassman and Frank Warner of Denver, Mark M. Barber of Germany, Colorado, and Ismael Sparks of Santa Fe. The capitalization is $500,000 and the headquarters will be at Santa Fe.

The will of the late Jerry Simpson has been filed for probate. The will dated April 15, 1891. It was made in accordance with the laws of the state of Kansas. The widow will receive one-half the estate and the other half will go to the only child, Lester Simpson, a ranchman near this city. Mrs. Simpson will remove to Wichita, Kansas, where she will make her future home.

In the United States Court at Las Vegas, the case against Robert Irving McMann, first charged with being Ed. Franks, train robber and murderer of Sheriff Farr, and later with being Potter, one of the Fort Sumner postoffice robbers, was dismissed. The United States witnesses declaring the man held was not Potter. The case against McMann as Franks was dismissed long ago.

Bids for carrying the mails from Roswell to Torrance on the Rock Island and Santa Fe Central and from Torrance to Roswell have been asked. Bidders must bid on a daily service each way, Sunday included. It would not be possible to make the required time except by auto, and if the contract is awarded to the Roswell Automobile Company, which will bid, it will add several of the heaviest and latest improved cars to its equipment.

The Socorro Water, Light and Ice Company has been incorporated by H. O. Bursam and Frank Owen of Santa Fe; W. E. Martin of Las Cruces and Elfigo Baca of Socorro, directors, the capitalization being $30,000. The company has acquired a franchise from the city of Socorro and will utilize the hot springs on Socorro mountain to furnish 240 horse power for the electric power works and also to furnish water to the city, which has the distinction of using hot mineral waters for its domestic water supply.

Frank Campbell, while on his way from Lake Valley to Kingston, was thrown from the stage and seriously, if not fatally injured, says an Albuquerque dispatch. The night was extremely dark, and just as the last creek, or arroyo on the road had been crossed, Campbell toppled to the ground and both wheels ran over his head. He was taken to a ranch house nearby and a physician sent for. The man is completely paralyzed from the neck down and his condition is precarious.

Whisky 100 Years Old in Church Wall. Concealed somewhere in the old Presbyterian church at Fairton there is said to be a bottle of whisky at least 100 years old. When the edifice was being built, it is said, the workmen struck for whisky, which in those days seemed to be a necessity. A quart was furnished them, but according to Hosea Husted, then an apprentice, the liquor was so "ornery" that the men couldn't drink it, but buried it in the walls. Robert Wescott, who relates the incident, says the bottle is still there.—Philadelphia Record.

Nature in Fit of Resentment. A British ironclad discovered a new island in the Mediterranean some years ago, and the captain planted a union jack on one of the volcanic peaks. Nature kicked against his appropriation of her property, and rather than let John Bull have the island she sank it under the sea. She started work with the volcanoes, and after they had burned for a night the whole island, evidently on the best of ill, with its seething mass of lava, disappeared with a deafening hiss under the waves.

Land Company's Compromise. An agreement was reached at Santa Fe by attorneys in the case of the Protective Association of the town of Costilla vs. the United States Freehold Land & Irrigation Company of Colorado, involving title to 253,000 acres of land in northern Taos county on the Colorado boundary. The settlers will be allowed to retain their homesteads and to use the range. The case had been on trial for three weeks and was contested step by step. The settlers, who were squatters, claimed title under the statute of limitations, while the defendants proved that they had been paying taxes on the land in question.

Medicine Man Killed. Antonia Maria Vargas, the soothsayer, medicine man, and historian of the ancient Pueblo Pieuia, Taos county, forty miles north of Santa Fe, was accidentally killed at a festa held to celebrate the bountiful crops this year.

Guns Were Bewitched. The following strange story comes from Albuquerque: Twelve Pueblo Indians from the San Domingo village north of this city, passed through here one day last week, all riding for a hunt in the vicinity of Acoma. They are returning, bringing back with them one dead Indian and three seriously injured.

Lost Boy's Remarkable Endurance. Eight days ago, says a Las Vegas dispatch, three-year-old Leandro Maestas wandered from his home near Las Vegas Hot Springs, barefooted and poorly clad, during a snow storm. Ever since, big parties had been searching every foot of forest in search of his body. Hope had been almost abandoned and his parents had concluded that wild beasts must have eaten the boy.

Indians Stopped Mail Carrier. An Albuquerque dispatch says: The three Pueblo Indians arrested Monday at Jemez village, who were brought to Albuquerque by Deputy United States Marshals Harry Cooper and Fred Foranoff and placed in the county jail, are the leaders of the pueblo, and their arrest has created consternation among their red brothers. One, Jose Iruy China, is the governor of the pueblo, while Jose Manuel Yeba is the medicine man and official religious leader. They were arrested at the conclusion of the annual harvest dance, which began Saturday, the warrants for their arrest having been issued upon indictments returned by the recent United States grand jury, charging them with obstructing the United States mails.

Government Buys Carlsbad Dam. A Carlsbad dispatch says: The United States government has accepted the offer of the Pecos Irrigation Company of Carlsbad to sell the Carlsbad dam project at the price agreed upon by the consulting engineers of the reclamation service. The terms of the sale have not been made public.

Reports have reached United States officials at Albuquerque that several small liquor dispensaries doing business near the Navajo western frontier, have been selling whisky to Indians and getting them drunk, and in consequence the isolated settlers are in fear that depredations will result. James K. Allen, the superintendent of the local Indian school, was instructed by the department at Washington to investigate, and he caused the arrest of several, including Theodore Gonzales, a saloon keeper at Cubero. The men arrested will be brought to Albuquerque for trial.

Counsel for Perfecto Armijo, sheriff of Bernalillo county by appointment, has filed an answer to the writ of quo warranto brought by former Sheriff T. S. Hubbell, in which Hubbell claims all right and title to the office, and asks to be restored to possession of the same. The answer is purely a formal matter and sets forth that a vacancy existed at the time of the appointment to the office and that Armijo has a right to the same upon the authority vested in a commission from the governor appointing him sheriff. The case will come up for trial some time next month.

They were arrested at the conclusion of the annual harvest dance, which began Saturday, the warrants for their arrest having been issued upon indictments returned by the recent United States grand jury, charging them with obstructing the United States mails.

The offense was committed one day last summer during the annual celebration of a sacred dance of the Indians. There is a star mail route that runs directly through the pueblo. While the dance was in progress the mail carrier appeared and the Indians, fearing he would see the dance and interfere by riding through it, notified the governor. He ordered several bucks to meet the mail carrier, place him under arrest and hold him a prisoner until after the dance was over, which order was executed. As a result the mail was delayed.

The Indians will be given a hearing at the coming term of the United States Court for this district.

Government Buys Carlsbad Dam. A Carlsbad dispatch says: The United States government has accepted the offer of the Pecos Irrigation Company of Carlsbad to sell the Carlsbad dam project at the price agreed upon by the consulting engineers of the reclamation service. The terms of the sale have not been made public.

The plant was valued at $350,000 and the company has lost thousands of dollars by flood damage and was practically bankrupt and unable to make the necessary repairs. Much improved land has been signed up under the project since the government began investigating the feasibility of rebuilding the irrigation works.

President Frank G. Tracy of the Pecos Irrigation Company, who accompanied a special committee from here and Carlsbad to Washington to call on the secretary of the interior, wired to-day from Washington the news of the government's decision. The land under this great dam is as fertile as any in New Mexico.

Guns Were Bewitched. The following strange story comes from Albuquerque: Twelve Pueblo Indians from the San Domingo village north of this city, passed through here one day last week, all riding for a hunt in the vicinity of Acoma. They are returning, bringing back with them one dead Indian and three seriously injured.

Their story is that on reaching a point near Acoma they went into camp and "stacked" arms like soldiers in camp. Some time during the night the "stack" fell and several of the loaded guns were discharged, sending bullets into the sleeping Indians.

The dead Indian's abdomen was torn open by a double charge, another was shot through his left thigh and arm; another's mouth was torn and his right ear shot off, and the fourth will lose his right arm below the elbow.

A physician at Laguna attended the wounded, and those who escaped are coming in with the dead and wounded some time to-morrow.

Lost Boy's Remarkable Endurance. Eight days ago, says a Las Vegas dispatch, three-year-old Leandro Maestas wandered from his home near Las Vegas Hot Springs, barefooted and poorly clad, during a snow storm. Ever since, big parties had been searching every foot of forest in search of his body. Hope had been almost abandoned and his parents had concluded that wild beasts must have eaten the boy.

A last search was made this morning and the little fellow was found in a dense thicket, alive and on his feet, but terribly wasted. As he temperature in the mountain region reaches ten degrees below zero these nights, and the snow lay thick in the woods, the boy's survival is considered by the native people a miracle.

ZUNI RESERVOIR.

Superintendent Harper Tells What It Will Accomplish.

J. B. Harper, superintendent of irrigation in the Indian department at Washington, was in Denver recently from the Zuni Indian reservation, New Mexico, where he is in charge of the construction of a reservoir that will enable the industrious Indians to till a large acreage and make them a greater people than they have been for centuries. Mr. Harper talked of his work there to a Denver Republican reporter and of the habits, economies and religion of the Zunis, all of which are interesting.

The reservoir is being built about forty miles below Gallup, in western New Mexico. Although Mr. Harper was modest regarding the undertaking, it is one that is interesting engineers and irrigationists. There is no bedrock. The dam has to be built on a foundation of clay. It is rock filled with a hydraulic earth fill in front. Space has to be left for the wall to settle. If it were built like the ordinary wall that has a perfectly solid foundation, it would crack in a short time. The reservoir will impound 16,000 acre feet of water and will store sufficient to irrigate a large, fertile valley.

It means the revivification of the Zuni tribe. The Indian department is building the dam and it will levy no tribute on the Indians. This plan is ever so much better than spending the $200,000 on supplies for lazy Indians and lazier agents on a typical reservation. The Zunis do not seek supplies from the Great White Father at Washington; they would like their scientific aid in doing what they themselves cannot perform, for as Mr. Harper points out, they are living and husbanding the land as they did 500 years ago when they were discovered by the conquest-seeking Spaniards. Even in those days the latter had heard from afar of the wealth of the Zunis and took it that the wealth was in silver and gold. They were exceedingly disappointed, when after many a weary day of travel over an unknown country, the army came upon a peaceful pueblo of agriculturists, who know nothing of mines or metals.

"They have the implements and the very grain that they used when first discovered and which are associated with the Cliff Dwellers," said Mr. Harper. "The grain taken from the grave of an ancient Cliff Dweller is the same kind of grain they plant to-day. I have talked to the scientists engaged in this field and they tell me that the games they play to-day are those that were played by their forefathers as far back as history can trace. But the Zunis are an industrious class of people. They work wonders without irrigation. They could give lessons to some of the scientific farmers of to-day in the management of the land. They plant their wheat in bunches on a hill and leave room so they can hoe between and around it and keep the earth dry on top to prevent the escape of the moisture through capillary attraction.

"They still retain their ancient customs and religion. They are sun worshippers. Their homes resemble the homes of the Cliff Dwellers and in their day they too lived in this way.

"Our department is building a modern school house on the reservation. We furnish them teachers but we do not interfere with their religion or tribal customs. Three years ago, they suffered severely from smallpox, but they are recovering and I look to see them increase. The land is very rich and with water to irrigate they will grow prosperous as they are not afraid of work."

Medicine Man Killed.

Antonia Maria Vargas, the soothsayer, medicine man, and historian of the ancient Pueblo Pieuia, Taos county, forty miles north of Santa Fe, was accidentally killed at a festa held to celebrate the bountiful crops this year.

In accordance with the ancient custom, there was a liberal use of firearms and a stray bullet from the gun of Antonio Martinez, a shepherd, who recently graduated from the Carlisle Indian School, struck Vargas in the thigh, severing an artery, death resulting a few minutes later.

The entire village immediately went into mourning, the bucks and squaws loosing their hair and continuing their lamentations day and night.

I. Dwyer, representing the government at Taos and Pieuia, is investigating the case. The Pieuia pueblo is over a thousand years old and consists of a communal building of mud five stories high, and which at one time held 3,000 people, although the population at present is only 100. The pueblo has five mystic estufas, all connected by underground chambers and tunnels.

TO AID THE JEWS

DENVER CHURCHES UNITE IN GREAT UNION MASS MEETING.

PASS STRONG RESOLUTIONS

Denounce Persecution of Jews in Russia—Ask That Our Government Shall Intervene—Money Raised for Sufferers.

Denver. — Denver witnessed a remarkable scene Sunday when for the first time in America, so far as any could recall, Christian people assembled in a Christian church, contributed money to aid persecuted Jews in Russia, and made a demand that the Christian people of the world stop the awful crimes. They ask their own government to join with other nations and prevent the crimes peacefully if possible, but with force if necessary, and that steps be taken by the powers to render such scenes as have transpired recently impossible in the future.

This remarkable gathering had been called at the First Baptist church for 2:30 Sunday afternoon by the leading ministers of the city, and developed peculiar features. A Jewish rabbi stood in the pulpit of a Baptist church on a Sunday afternoon and his voice was raised no louder in sounding the praises of the sterling worth which abounds in Jewish character than were those of the Christian preachers, the judges and the citizens who were to sound the great protest.

At the meeting it was announced that a telegram had been received by Rabbi Friedman from President Roosevelt in answer to the resolutions adopted at the mass meeting of Hebrews last week, in which the President declared that the government has the Jewish situation in Russia under careful consideration.

Rev. Dr. Vosburgh, pastor of the First Baptist Church, called the meeting to order and explained its objects. He did not find it necessary to try to picture the crimes, as the newspapers have in part made them familiar, but he declared the outrage is against humanity and not against the Jew alone. Dr. Vosburgh read a number of letters of regret from ministers and others. Among them was one from Senator Thomas M. Patterson, in which a check for $50 was enclosed. He stated also that a member of the church had given a check for $25. A considerable amount of money was collected by contribution.

Upon motion, Chief Justice Gabbert of the Supreme Court was chosen to preside. In accepting the duty, he spoke briefly and pointed out that in eighty Russian cities the Ghettoes have been given over to sack and murder and 25,000 people have been killed. No one knows how many have been injured, nor the horrors those now left are suffering. He would not embarrass the government at Washington by making demands that it cannot repeat to Russia, but it is time to take action by which such outrages may not again be perpetrated anywhere.

Among the speakers were Judge Ben B. Lindsey, Hon. Frank Goudy, Rev. Bayard Craig and others.

Rev. Bayard Craig declared that not in the pulpits of Denver is prejudice against the Jew taught. In helping those distressed people the Christian and Jewish people will find that they have also helped themselves morally. Judge Gabbert announced that he appoints F. S. Snell and Mrs. Goddard to head a permanent committee to solicit funds and turn them over to the proper person.

The resolutions adopted are as follows:

"Resolved, that as Christian citizens of Denver assembled, this Lord's Day, we hereby publicly express our sympathy for the down-trodden and persecuted Jews of Russia and we denounce the monstrous tyranny of the Russian authorities in permitting persecution and cruelty upon an offenseless and helpless people, at which the whole Christian world stands aghast.

"Resolved further, that suitable action be taken by our own government to notify the Russian authorities of the interest of the Christian citizens of America in the welfare of the Jewish people in the Czar's domain and that we view with horror the awful butchery of innocent men, women and children by the uncontrolled subjects of the Russian empire. That public meetings be held all over America to express the detestation of Christian people at the inaction and inability of the Russian government to prevent the outrages inflicted upon its innocent and helpless subjects.

"Resolved further, that we favor direct action by the authorities at Washington, through diplomatic appeal to the Russian government, or otherwise, to assist in bringing about a cessation of the murders and outrages inflicted on the Jewish people in the Czar's domains.

"Resolved further, that a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to the proper authorities at Washington and in Russia, and that we join in calling on Christians throughout the United States to arouse themselves to the sufferings of the persecuted Jews and enlist in the struggle in their behalf until the power of an enlightened and aroused public opinion will for ever abolish the barbarous outrages inflicted on our Jewish brothers."

Governor Folk's Prediction.

Kansas City, Mo.—Edward Rosewater, editor of the Omaha Bee, and Governor Joseph W. Folk of Missouri were the guests of honor at the monthly dinner here of the Knife and Fork Club. Governor Folk, in the course of his speech, said:

"The next few years will be distinguished as the time in which industrial problems are settled, the reign of special privileges brought to an end, the recognition of the doctrine of equal rights fixed in national policies and in the conscience of mankind. We are in the midst of the most drastic period of American history, the period in which the people's rights are to be defined and observed as they have never been before."
